

Continuous Internal Evaluation (CIE) stands as a crucial aspect within the teaching-learning framework of any educational institution. In our establishment, CIE is not only robust and continuous but also leverages Information and Communication Technology (ICT) to ensure transparency.

The ongoing internal assessment involves several methods for categorizing students into progressive, moderate, or weak based on:

1. Reviewing students' previous mark lists.
2. Assessing responses during classroom teaching and learning.
3. Monitoring attendance records.
4. Evaluating performance in classroom tests.
5. Reviewing assignments and homework submissions.

In addition to these methods, the institution conducts internal examinations at the college level about 15-20 days before the semester examinations. Teachers are instructed to complete their syllabus well in advance of these internal exams. The internal examination aims to replicate the actual examination environment, providing students with a comprehensive experience. The examination papers are meticulously assessed by respective teachers, and results are compiled.

To foster a transparent process, students are invited to the college to review and assess their answer sheets. Teachers guide them on preparing for upcoming examinations, and in response to student requests or when necessary, additional lecture deemed sessions are organized. This comprehensive approach ensures a thorough and effective Continuous Internal Evaluation system in place.
